Governor's Committee Report Improvement on State Wide Contest.

Entry of 1000 more cars and establishment of a continually improving accident record marked the first month of the second state-wide safety contest for commercial vehicles, according to results for July announced by the governor's committee on street and highway safety. The number of competing vehicles reached a new high peak of 15,610 which operated a total of 3,763,083 hours with 868 accidents.

This performance means an accident frequency rate of 23.06 per 100,000 hours of operation, a slightly lower figure than the average for the first six-months contest, that ended in June, and also slightly below the rate for that month. In only two individual months of the first contest did the frequency rate drop below the July mark, which appears in marked contrast to the 32.35 rate for the opening month of the original contest. The total hours of driving was the largest of any month this year.

The percentage of fleets and of individual cars which survived the month without a single accident ran about the same as in the previous contest. Of the 530 fleets in the new competition, 294, or 55.4 per cent., operated all through July with a clean slate. Slightly more than 94 per cent. of the vehicles, reckoned individually, operated for the entire month without a single accident. The proportion of personal injury accidents remained at one in nine, which was the ratio in the best months of the previous contest.

*Group 1—Bakeries—The Twentieth Century Baking, Inc., Haverhill.

Group 3—Busses—Hart Bus Lines, Inc., Revere.

*Group 4—Cleansers and Dyers—North Shore Dye House, Inc., Revere.

Group 5—Coal and Ice—Milton Ice Co., Inc., Milton.

*Group 9—Merchandise, retail—W. K. Hutchinson Co., Arlington.

*Group 10—Municipal—Town of Norwood.

*Group 11—Oil and Gasoline—Busfield Oil Co., Inc., Haverhill.

Group 12—Public Utilities—New Bedford Gas & Edison Light Co.

*Group 13—Taxicabs—Yellow Cab Co., Worcester.

Group 14—Transfer, cartage, storage—Hotel & Railroad News Co., Boston.

*Group winner in two months of first contest.

Group 1—Bakeries, $18.95.

Group 2—Building supplies, $18.24.

Group 3—Busses, $34.92.

Group 4—Cleansers—Dyers, $22.86.

Group 5—Coal and Ice, $21.26.

Group 6—Dairy Products, $30.18.

Group 7—Laundries, $20.95.

Group 8—Merchandise, wholesale, $26.72.

Women Are Active in Primary Campaign

Seek Nominations of Business Men as Best Means of Insuring Prosperity and Maintaining Family Budget at High Standard

Massachusetts women are showing as much interest in politics this year as the men. Registration figures disclose that there is a 50-50 division between men and women voters, according to returns to Mrs. Louise M. Williams of Taunton, prominent socially and politically, who is taking an active part in the present primary campaign.

"The reason," Mrs. Williams says, "is not hard to find. Women are greatly concerned with present business and employment conditions in the State. Every woman is extremely interested in the prosperity of the family bread winner."

"Women think something ought to be done to improve business. That seems to be the chief thing on their minds today. They want to nominate for public office experienced and successful business men who know the ropes and will work intelligently for better business for Massachusetts."

"Why do they feel that way? Because they realize their homes, their family welfare and their happiness depend on good business. When business is bad the whole family suffers, the women as much as the men. And just now business is not so good in Massachusetts."

"I am told, for instance, that the textile workers in our State are getting nearly $500,000 a week less wages than they got in 1923. That is because many mills have closed down or moved away. Most of those which have left Massachusetts have gone to Southern States where the working week is 60 hours. In this State it is fixed by law at 48 hours."

"Now $500,000 a week is a lot of money. It is equal to $80,000 a day. That's what the wage earners of Massachusetts already have lost because of unequal hours of work. Women have lost it as well as men; they are as much interested as the men in stopping further losses."

"We believe that the 60-hour working week in the Southern States is unfair to labor and unfair to Massachusetts. We favor a national 48-hour law to equalize the hours of labor all over the country and we are working for candidates pledged to such a law."

Mrs. Williams has opened headquarters at the Bellevue Hotel in Boston and is actively pushing her campaign. As chairman of the women's division of the campaign committee working for the nomination of William M. Butler as United States Senator, she is in touch with other women leaders all over Massachusetts. Among her active aides are Miss Helen M. Reilly, secretary of the division, and Miss Elizabeth Harding, Boston chairman.

From her state-wide influence, Mrs. Williams believes women will go to the polls primary day in record-breaking numbers to vote for candidates pledged to work for an improvement in business conditions. Many of her correspondents have formed local committees and are planning to bring out a big women's vote. In more than 150 towns and cities, including almost every community of any size, these local committees are at work today aiding their neighbors in making up their minds how to vote and planning to get them to the polls primary day.

AN OPEN LETTER

To the People in the

First Parish Area:

This includes all those without church affiliation in the southern area of the village. A church stands in your midst that has no dogma to uphold, no creed to impose upon the freedom of your own thought, but has a message of life translatable into life and verifiable in life. The pulpit sheltered by it pleads for the religion of the Christ, which is brotherly and therein the most inclusive, taking the term Christian as the most finely human, and enforcing it as a practical concern of the individual in the community.

The location of the building as that of the First Parish is justified in the more than two hundred years in the town. The present edifice has been from time to time renovated as a token of what it enshrines as a thing of life. As it now stands—in what has been done and what remains to be done in a delay occasioned by no fault of the people or any acting for them it is to be neighborly to all and as helpful as it may be. No one is to be burdened in its support, not even its closest friends or any who want to be a friend.

There is the obligation of the people to the church, especially of those who believe in it and cherish the purpose for which it exists, and they should be widely many in the community, if not the totality thereof. A church spire in the neighborhood of the people adds value to property and to life itself. One who has refused to give toward the erection of a church in his neighborhood was asked what he thought real estate was worth in Sodom and Gomorrah! He responded to the suggestion and made his contribution.

In the phrase of Lincoln, "With malice toward none, with charity for all," the ministry of the First Congregational Unitarian Church of Northfield is to be maintained and its work forwarded.

OF LOCAL INTEREST

Dear Editor:

It is a pleasure to see the various markers about town which permanently established locations of historical society of Northfield and the State their interest in such matters.

Of Mass., are to be congratulated on their interest in such matters.

One thing in connection with historical events of our town troubles one. I had always supposed that the so-called "Beers Plain Road" was a name given to a certain road in honor of Captain Richard Beers. This name, as I understand it, was selected and approved by a vote of the town and registered as such.

To my surprise another name is substituted which, as far as I know has neither historical background nor local application, just why this is so I fail to get a substantial reason from any source.

To be brief and to the point, as far as I am able to discover—any vote taken by the town is valid until that vote is rescinded by a vote of the town, therefore, whatever has been granted, permitted, or otherwise taken advantage of in this respect is without foundation.

This particular incident should be of special interest to the Historical Society of Northfield, and I trust they will adjust the matter by erecting suitable signs, before our next town meeting, otherwise I shall feel it my duty to bring it before the town in our annual town meeting of next year.

Philip Porter.

In Defense of Children

By Jeanne Grey

All through these summer months we have been reading admonitions by food experts and home economics on what and what not to eat. For the most part, this advice is intended for grown-ups, while the question of the children's diet has been figuratively waved away with the oft-repeated suggestion that they drink "plenty of milk and eat spinach."

Most children abhor spinach and a great many of them stubbornly refuse to drink milk. In fact, many a mother has to administer punishment to a child who fairly shivers when she thrusts a glass of milk upon it, and the benefits of milk when forced upon a sobbing chastised child are certainly questionable.

The sensible mother, when in dilemma, consults a pediatric physician. She finds he frequently recommends that she try hot cereal beverages which have been favored with plenty of milk and sweetened to taste. For a hot weather drink he suggests milk shakes which have been made with sugar, milk and a cereal beverage in the proper proportions.

Among the poorer class it has been found that a great number of children are, unfortunately, tea and coffee addicts. These children have arms and legs like mere stems; they are usually a bundle of excitement; they don't like milk and they do like bread and coffee.

Anything which tends to overstimulate the nervous system should be discouraged, whether it is in the nature of food or play. Children who are aroused to anger, who are impetuous and impatient have either been brought up among persons who show these same reactions, or perhaps they were fed tea and coffee when they should have been drinking milk or a cereal beverage made with milk.

Children are normally sufficiently active and energetic without the extra stimulation produced by tea and coffee. Besides, coffee and tea have no food value and the educated mother today realizes that their use minimizes the use of nutritious beverages.

A few States have started campaigns against the practice of giving tea and coffee to children, pediatric physicians claiming that milk and hot liquids are most desirable, and further recommending that children drink water between meals when they are thirsty, for it keeps their kidneys active and helps them throw off body impurities through the pores in perspiration.

To fatten the farm turkey for November 27 next, begin about the first of October, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. At first feed just enough to keep the bird a little hungry, and gradually increase the feed until it gets all it will clean up three times a day during the week before killing. Some turkey growers feed equal parts of corn, wheat, and oats in the first part of the fattening period and gradually change to corn alone as the weather grows cooler. Old corn is a much better feed than new corn. The old corn should not be musty.

Love Of Beauty Is Sexless Men Show Good Taste Too

Man, who once bedecked himself with silk and satin, ruffles and plumes, to which he added as the day and mode demanded sword and pistol, button-hole bouquet, or walking stick, is nowadays commonly thought to have emerged from all thought of fanciful or even attractive attire. In other words the man of 1930 is supposed to be a plain and practical fellow incapable of knowing how many buttons adorn his coat, or what his shirt really looks like.

A glance at the men's shops of the land should suffice to take a bit of the edge from this myth of absolute masculine disinterest in fashion. Yet the impression prevails that men really know very little about what they wear; and still less about that presumably imaginary character—the "well dressed man" and his attire.

A woman fashion editor of international repute commented this week. She said: "I noticed a tendency in Europe this summer for the smart man to use 'shirtwaists'." Pointing to a pile of lovely snowy and pastel colored dune jacquard shirtwaists lying on her desk, she explained, "Those are men's shirtwaists, but you see them in my office because the well dressed woman is interested in them too for tennis and golf frocks; for beach and housekeeping pajamas, and for practical home dresses. I haven't been able to observe much difference in the interest shown by both sexes in the fact that such softly crisp and wearable materials are a desirable fashion."

"No difference?" we asked, but aren't the women much more conscious of the design and colorings in such fabrics?"

"Shirtmakers don't give one that idea," she smiled. "And why should there be? If a man can enjoy a sunset or a book, or a band concert as much as a woman, why shouldn't he enjoy beauty in any form—even in his shirt? Certainly a sense of keen and voluble interest in beauty is stronger in one person than in another, but it doesn't strike me that the most manly men I know are inevitably those who spurn the advantages of looking well; nor is necessarily the most frivolously, clinging vine type of woman possessed of the most acute sense of harmony and knowledge regarding loveliness in clothes. The thing is much deeper and quite sexless if you ask me."

All Aboard For Better Times

A statement from William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, says that there has been no increase in unemployment during the past few weeks, and he believes that this fact probably "foreshadows the Fall increase in industrial activity." Roger W. Babson, who predicted the paralysis of the stock market last Fall, has just issued his first bull statement in which he advises careful buying of sound stocks (whatever those articles may be). Frequent official statements from high sources have been coming along gradually from Washington, and many of the country's leading manufacturers and financial chiefs have prophesied good times ahead. The fact that Green and Babson have joined their voices to the "cheerful chorus" furnishes encouragement to the multitudes who have been patiently waiting, as a character in Dickens' novel said, "for something to turn up."

Ford Plane Inaugurates Air Mail to Canaries

OVERSEA air mail service between Madrid, the capital of Spain, and the Canary Islands, Spanish possessions in the South Atlantic, has just been successfully inaugurated with a Ford tri-motor transport land plane, according to reports received by the Ford Motor Company.

The advent of the new service was hailed by Spanish newspapers as an outstanding event in Spanish aviation, reducing as it does the travel time between the Spanish peninsula and the Canary Islands by many hours and closely linking the island possessions to the kingdom.

Passes Over Sahara

The route of the Ford transport on its flight to and from the islands carried the plane over the broiling Spanish Sahara, with a long jump over water to Las Palmas and Santa Cruz de Tenerife. The outbound flight, with stops for fuel at Casablanca and Cabo Juby, required 14 hours.

On its return flight, the party of officials who inaugurated the service, including Cesar Gomez, director of Classa Air Lines, which operates the services to the Canaries as well as between Madrid, Seville and Barcelona, and Ernesto Navarro, technical adviser of the National Aeronautical Bureau, participated for three days in the search of the Sahara for the Spanish military pilots Burguete and Nunez, who had been forced down in the desert. During this search, the party in the Ford plane combed the Sahara from the air over a strip of territory 300 kilometers inland from the coast. The search ended when the lost fliers found their way to an outpost and reported themselves safe.

rific heat the plane's three Wright J-6 motors functioned perfectly, the pilots, Ansaldo and Soriano, reported following the return of the party to Madrid. The plane, being equipped with radio, was in constant communication with the Spanish military base at Cabo Juby during the flights.

Daily Flight Planned

Upon his return to Madrid Pilot Ansaldo reported that in the round trip flight between Madrid and the Canary Islands and the flights over the desert in search of the lost aviators the plane had flown 8,000 kilometers, approximately 5,000 miles, with perfect performance.

The inaugural flight in the Ford plane, which the Classa line had operated in regular service between Madrid, Seville and Barcelona, was preliminary to the regular operation of the service between Spain and the Canaries with amphibian planes. The service at first will be weekly but later it is planned to put it on a daily basis.

A gathering of distinguished Spanish civil officials, including Minister of the Interior Matos, participated in the ceremonies incident to the inauguration of the service when the plane departed from Madrid. Large crowds greeted the plane and its party at both Las Palmas and Santa Cruz de Tenerife. The plane carried in addition to the pilots and the official party two mechanics, a radio operator, large consignments of mail and bundles of the Madrid newspaper "La Vanguardia."

Automobile Deaths Increase 2.2 Per cent Since 1st of Year

A rise in automobile deaths in July has brought the total for the year up to August 1 in Massachusetts to a point slightly higher than the corresponding date a year ago, according to announcement of an analysis by the governor's committee on street and highway safety and the registry of motor vehicles. The total was 443 for 1929 and 453 for 1930 for the eight-months total (fiscal year) ending July 31.

The increase amounts to 2.2 per cent, which is still well below the approximately 4 per cent. increase in registrations. On July 1 the totals for this year and last year stood at exactly the same figure, but the month of July saw a jump in fatalities of 11.4 per cent. over the same month a year ago. This rise represented also an increase of 9.6 per cent. over June of this year. This July's death toll was 68, as compared with 62 for June and 61 for July a year ago.

In July there was a sharp departure from the recent trend in type of death. Of recent years occupants of cars have become more frequent victims than pedestrians, but last month there was a distinct reversal of experience. Pedestrian deaths jumped 58.3 per cent. over June and 31 per cent. above July, 1929. On the other hand, occupant victims decreased in number 24.3 per cent. from June and 3.4 per cent. from July, 1929.

There was no such upset, however, in regard to child deaths, the same distinct tendency being observable toward fewer fatalities for children as compared with adults. There was an actual decrease of 20.8 per cent. in child motor deaths from July a year ago, in contrast to a corresponding increase of 32.4 in adult victims. Similarly over the June figure there was an increase of 5.5 per cent. for children, practically half that of 11.3 for adults.

The change in trend as between pedestrians and occupants in July was not great enough to upset the cumulative trend for the entire year to date. As compared with the corresponding eight-months period of 1929, pedestrian deaths this year have increased only 1.5 per cent., while deaths of motor car riders have risen 3.4 per cent. Adult deaths have gone up 7.3 per cent., while child victims have diminished 12.1 per cent.

OUR SMALL TOWN SISTER'S WARDROBE

There was a time when the people in smaller communities clung to simplicity in fashion and "city folks" tended toward showiness. The current styles studied from the vantage of both large and small cities show a decided trend toward taking a leaf from the country fashion book. Simplicity and that casualness most suited to less rushing community life are becoming chic for city-folks.

Thus the small town girl going off to boarding school or college this year and taking with her a wardrobe chosen for its practical smartness, its simple appropriateness and becomingness will find herself wearing precisely what her city class mates of good taste will wear.

This will include semi-sports and active sports frocks, skirts and sweaters, probably a class room jersey frock—not warm and wooly for early fall days and later heated class rooms but, for example one of those new knits which by combining wool with dured cotton are made considerably less "stretchy" and at the same time light weight. Then there should be a crepe afternoon frock for tea with the Dean or at the President's house; a dinner frock of crepe or chiffon, and possibly a "prom" gown for more formal evening wear.

Any or all of these items of dress may be duplicated to the number which it has been decided the young lady in question will need. Class room dresses will probably lead the list in quantity, but this should not diminish their simple attractiveness nor quality of material. They will get the most strenuous and constant wear. Depend upon what sports are to be entered will be the active sports costume. Of course, there should be a fall coat for campus wear, though the jersey frocks can be made with matching or contrasting jackets. A winter coat in most climates will be a necessity. Don't forget both comfortable shoes and fancy slippers for evening, goloshes, berets and a hat for town trips.

The pullets in the poultry flock should get a good growing ration in late summer and early fall so they will be in laying condition by October, or at the latest by the first part of November. If the pullets start laying too early, however, reduce the amount of protein in the ration. It may also be advisable to omit milk from the ration. Pullets that begin to lay too early—4 to 5 months of age—are inclined to lay very small eggs; or they may lay a few eggs and then go into a molt.

Be more careful in making silage from legume crops than from nonleguminous crops, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Legumes have a lower sugar content from which the acids necessary in preserving silage are developed. All the legumes may be ensiled successfully if mixed with a crop containing much sugar, such as a corn or sorghum; or they may be ensiled alone if not too succulent when cut.

Be careful not to cook corn on the cob too long or it will be tough and tasteless. Have a large kettle of water boiling and drop the corn into the water for from 8 to 10 minutes, if there are not many ears.

THOUGHTS FOR SERIOUS MOMENTS

That is not riches which may be lost; virtue is our true good and the true reward of its possessor.—Dav. Vincel.

Sit down before fact as a little child; be prepared to give up every preconceived notion—or you shall learn nothing.—Huxley.

There is but one way in which man can ever help God—that is by letting God help him; and there is no way in which His name is more guiltily taken in vain than by calling the abandonment of our own work, the performance of His.—Ruskin.

The man who counts is the man who makes himself felt as a force for decency, a force for clean living, for righteousness.—Roosevelt.

Whether or not we are conscious of the fact, or whether or not we believe it, our lives with success or failure, happiness or misery, etc., are controlled by laws as positive as the laws which control the universe. To command the law we must be in harmony with it.—Selected.

Is the man who has lost his enthusiasm.—H. W. Arnold.

BOYS and girls from 38 States and four Canadian provinces will meet at the 14th annual Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass., from Sept. 14 to 20 inclusive for the biggest junior convention ever conducted in the east. With their 19 separate divisions and 1500 members they will conduct a complete exposition within an exposition. More than 200 different activities will be represented. Farm boys and girls will present their own specialized projects. Boy Scouts of 10 States will be seen in the Mohawk Indian Village. City boys and girls will occupy the Junior Achievement Village. Maine and New Hampshire will send additional delegations of club champions. Junior musicians will compete in the Junior Music Festival. The first regional oratorical contest of the Future Farmers of America will be held Tuesday, Sept. 16. Leading Livestock Herds To Compete In Eastern States Judging Rings

LEADING livestock herds of America and Canada will compete for international honors in the Eastern States Exposition show rings in Springfield, Mass., from Sept. 14 to 20 inclusive. Approximately 3,000 individual animals have been entered in the various open classes. Judging will begin Monday, Sept. 15, and continue throughout the week. Classes include Dairy and Beef Cattle, Draft and Show Horses, Sheep and Swine. Featured on the live stock program will be the third annual Ayshire Bull Futurity and a special exhibition herd of Corriedales shipped from the stock farm of J. F. Walker & Son of Gambier, Ohio. This is a recent importation from New Zealand and will be the first showing of the breed in the east. Livestock sales, breed association meetings, wool show, poultry and rabbit show, and dynamometer horse pulling contests are among other events of Exposition week.

TAKING THE GUESS OUT OF BUSINESS

By JOHN G. LONSDALE
President American Bankers Association

BANKERS and business men err in not adopting more universally the tactics of the scientist. When the scientist wishes to fathom the mysteries of the universe or to solve things into their component parts he calls to his assistance the magnifying power of the microscope. There before him, like an open book, lie the secrets of nature which unaided eyes cannot observe.

John G. Lonsdale

The uncanny power of the microscope's all-seeing eye has revealed countless secrets for the material and intellectual progress of humanity. It has enabled us to study the processes of growing cells in plant and animal life, trace the causes of disease and successfully combat the ills of mankind; it has aided the engineer in his search for stronger and more serviceable materials, giving us taller, lighter and more sanitary structures, and better highways; it has disclosed the defects in steel rails and brought us an era of safer railroad travel; it has added to the food supply of the nation; in fact, it has affected favorably nearly every activity of the human race, whether it apply to production, distribution or consumption, in time of peace or in time of war.

In the business and banking world, economic research and analysis serve as the microscope through which we are enabled to see basic factors more clearly and thus determine the causes of success and failure. Only recently have we begun to realize the full value of research and analysis and apply them in such a way as to eliminate the guesswork that was characteristic of industry a few years ago. "Eliminate the guess and reach success," might well be a motto for all of us.

Banking Conducting Continual Research

The American Bankers Association is daily submitting every phase and every department of banking to searching scrutiny and study, says John G. Lonsdale, president of this the world's greatest financial association. The findings of these investigations are made available to the 20,000 members of the organization for their guidance.

"It is a fine tribute to the spirit of cooperation among bankers that it is able to carry on this work," he says. "Bankers from one end of the country to the other are constantly giving freely and unselfishly of their skill and experience so that the association may produce the truly great results that are being accomplished."

Statistical information on national and state banks, savings institutions, trust companies and trust departments, clearing house groups and general banking is prepared after exhaustive inquiry and distributed for the use of all bankers. The organization's investigations have resulted in the passage of beneficial legislation, revision of banking practices and innumerable changes for a stronger and more efficient banking structure. It has set up an educational system through its affiliated American Institute of Banking, where 45,000 ambitious young bank men and women are now availing themselves of the opportunity to advance in the banking field.

"It has been well said that the American Bankers Association, exclusive of the Federal Reserve System, has been the greatest single nationwide source of stability and improved conditions for banking in the United States," Mr. Lonsdale says.

Banking Grows More Complicated

DENVER, Colo.—The increase in the technicalities of the banking business in the past dozen years was shown by a speaker before the American Institute of Banking which held its annual convention here recently when he pointed out that in 1918, when the institute last met in this city, it gave only three courses, while today it gives 10, with more subjects in preparation. At the earlier date, he said, the curriculum of the institute consisted of elementary banking, commercial and banking law, and money and banking, whereas today it consists of banking fundamentals, commercial law, negotiable instruments, standard economics, standard banking, credits, investments, trust functions, analyzing financial statements, and public speaking, while the two new subjects of bank operation and organization, and bank management are to be added.

The New Pace of Business Change. Business evolution used to move slowly—it measured off its gradual changes almost invisibly, like the hour hand on the clock. But today its tempo is that of the second hand. The movement of evolution that is quickening business with rapid changes is alarmingly visible and makes it difficult to keep up with them.—R. B. Hecht.

MUNYAN'S GREENFIELD, MASS.

DOES your skin seem oily soon after it has been cleansed? Do you have trouble keeping your nose from becoming shiny? Does your skin disclose greasy patches when you use a necessary foundation cream or lotion under your powder?

A good complexion is the birthright of every woman. Regular, thorough cleansing of the skin is necessary, of course; but with a background of good health, plus a few minutes daily use of the right beauty care, there is no reason why you should suffer from any skin fault.

It has been my experience as adviser to thousands of women that a simple, effective treatment can be found for virtually every complexion fault. In most cases just some little thing that has been overlooked has been responsible for bringing about the most astonishing changes. The first step in achieving a lovely complexion is to have a competent adviser analyze your skin problems and find just the proper treatment for your individual needs.

If you are troubled with blackheads—if your skin feels drawn after it has been washed with soap and water—if your lips dry out and chap easily—all these are indications that you are neglecting your skin or are following the wrong type of treatment. Won't you simply write me and state the trouble you are having? I know I can help you find the right road to the beauty that every woman craves.

GREENFIELD FAIR

September 8, 9 and 10

At Greenfield, where the Mohawk Trail begins, will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, September 8, 9 and 10, the eightieth annual fair of the Franklin County Agricultural Society. Night shows, with fireworks and Tuesday evenings, September 8 displays, will take place on Monday and 9, ad day shows on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 9 and 10. The program, which the officials of the society believe will be the most noteworthy in Greenfield fair's history, will include large exhibits of pure bred cattle, blooded horses, sheep and swine, two exhibition halls filled with products of the field, garden and domestic industry, juvenile club displays, high school athletic meet and parade of floats (Sept. 10 only) and two days of harness racing.

The float parade of the second day promises to be the largest in many years. It will comprise features by the 4-H clubs and by the Blue Ribbon children of the Franklin County Public Health Association. The high school athletes from high schools of the county area. This will take place on the morning of Sept. 10.

A splendid bill of vaudeville comprising six acts will be presented at both afternoon and evening shows both days.

Participation in Boston Tercentenary Parade Sept. 17th.

It has been suggested to the city of Boston committee that in its great parade on Wednesday, September 17th, there be a division composed of units from a number of other cities and towns of the state. The plan is approved and can be carried out if the communities improve the opportunity to gain a wide audience for their own efforts in relation to the Tercentenary. The Boston parade will attract large numbers of spectators as well as participants, and will receive extensive New England and National publicity by the press and the news films. A Town and City Division could be interesting and colorful.

It is proposed that from the local play, parade, pageant or other event that has taken place in your community this summer one or more units be selected for the Boston parade. The following might be suitable: (a) costumed marching group representing some historical incident in your community; (b) or such an incident shown on a float; (c) showing of a local attraction or historical feature without accompanying actors; (d) an ancient vehicle with riders in appropriate dress; (e) a feature of more than one unit, tracing the development of a state-wide known industry or occupation in your community; (f) a contribution to the development of state or nation by means of an impersonated individual. Singing groups are desirable, to march on or floats.

It has been the custom for Boston to have a great parade each fifty years on the occasion of celebrations of its founding; and on this Tercentenary year the parade will be of outstanding character to make it notable among all American parades on such occasions. The parade is now planned to start at 10 a. m. and come to an end about 5 p. m. with fully 30,000 marchers and 100 floats. Each division will enter the parade at a scheduled hour, following the Army and Navy and the National Guard.

Probably the Town and City Division would not enter the line before noon, thus allowing time for transportation to Boston and enabling a return home that evening.

Beyond any question the state-wide plan of the Tercentenary celebration has been and is now a full success, with its character becoming more adequately comprehended by all, both participants and visitors. The idea of many localized celebrations all over the state, each in its way commemorating the establishment of the Bay Colony and all that followed, and also fitting programs for and by the people never been applied on such a scale. Perhaps it could not be except in Massachusetts.

But there is a feeling that we should have at least one great central jubilation event for everybody. There will be centralized events in sections of the state, as at Springfield with its exposition, and at Brockton, each with Tercentenary features in addition to the customary events; and other local fairs will utilize the Tercentenary spirit; and the state, by a special commission will set up an exposition of the activities and service of its departments; and so on. But—the Boston Tercentenary Parade of September 17th offers an opportunity for an exclusively celebration demonstration of the showy sort that so many people associate with great anniversaries.

"Boston Week" is September 14 to 20, and during these days there will be a variety of events particularly of the city. On the 17th the whole day may be well given over to a marching demonstration of the organizations and forces that have built up the city during the years. Surely this includes the people and interests of the state as well as of the immediate vicinity of Boston. The Boston committee extends a welcome to towns and cities that wish to come into the parade and add to its significance as a general Tercentenary feature of interest to all in their own neighborhoods, has all.

FASHIONS for the SMART WOMAN

CRISP DIAGONAL LINES

Since the frock in which most of one's daytime hours are spent in summer is of the simple sports type, it is pleasant to realize that this season offers it in a greater number of variations than ever before, all of them smart, original and charming.

Here diagonal lines have provided a typical theme. The jaunty blue crepe frock at the left tops its skirt with a pointed outline repeating that of its belt bolero, which buttons to the belt in back. The sleeveless shantung model features a yoke, two clever tabs, and diagonal bands which terminate in a broad front box-pleat.

Historical Society Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Northfield Historical Society was held last Tuesday evening in Dickinson Hall. Reports of the clerk and treasurer for the past year were read and accepted. Attention was drawn to the Grindstone Monument erected at the expense of the Historical Society near the bridge at Mill Brook to mark the site of the first grist mill erected in Northfield, and other activities of the year.

The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: Clerk, Miss Daisy Holton; treasurer, Mrs. Frank H. Montague; directors, Leon Alexander, Florence Colton, A. P. Fitt, L. R. Smith and C. C. Stearns. The directors will meet at an early date and elect the other officers of the corporation.

At the close of business Gordon Reed showed several reels of movie films of the Tercentenary parade taken by himself and E. M. Powell, which were much enjoyed.

Hints For Homemakers By Jane Rogers

IF your pancakes have a tendency to stick to the griddle, try rubbing it with the cut side of a raw potato instead of greasing it. This will usually prevent sticking even when grease consistently fails.

The art of seasoning lies in blending and developing the flavors of the main ingredients; never in smothering them out of all recognition. A small amount of sugar, for instance, is frequently used in the preparation of meat and fish sauces; not to sweeten, but to point up and harmonize the flavors of the fish or meat, and the other ingredients of the sauce.

Thousands of New Displays

Eastern States Exposition Programs Include Exceptional Exhibits, Entertainment and Feature Attractions

Unusual features, thousands of exhibits, exceptional fireworks, the best of music, high class circus acts, vaudeville and an entire building given over to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in which to portray activities of state departments as a contribution by the state to the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary are only a few of the attractions awaiting visitors to the 14th annual Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass., from Sept. 14 to 20 inclusive.

Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts will have special exhibits in their own state buildings. Connecticut will present an elaborate display in the industrial arts division where more than 400 manufacturers will show their varied products. Farm and industrial machinery will have a section of its own. Specialized displays will include flowers, fruit and vegetable shows, automobile show, the Hampden County League exhibit in its own building and there will be acres and acres of general displays, each a special feature in itself.

The mammoth fireworks spectacle "Last Days of Pompeii," on a 500-foot outdoor stage with hundreds of actors and tons of explosives will be presented nightly at the grandstand. Twenty leading circus and vaudeville acts will be headlined at the grandstand every afternoon and evening. Music will be furnished afternoon and evening by the Governor's Footguard Band of Hartford, the 104th Infantry Band of Springfield and several orchestras and junior groups.

Transportation companies are preparing exhibits of aircraft, locomotives, railway mail service plus other travel agencies. The Federal Government is co-operating. So are breed associations, colleges, schools, and numerous civic groups. The livestock show will be the greatest ever assembled, and horse and auto races, together with whippet dog and auto polo will provide race track thrills. Frothing on the entertainment cake will be the daily drills by the picked composite Tercentenary troop of the Massachusetts State Police.

Clarion

PROVES ITSELF

BY EVERY TEST OF TONE and APPEARANCE

Until you hear and see Clarion for yourself, you cannot realize what a sensational new development it is—particularly in clarity and fidelity of tone. That's why we want you to inspect Clarion and submit it to your own tests. We want you to compare it with any other radio made—not merely with any radio in the same price class, but with any other at any price. It will be obvious at once that Clarion is the equal of the most expensive receivers—in tone, in selectivity, in sensitivity, in cabinetwork. It will be just as obvious that Clarion cannot be approached in any of these respects by any radio selling for less than twice its price!

APPLE PRICE SITUATION

In view of the apple price situation this fall the State Department of Agriculture is doubling its efforts to keep the fruit growers of the state informed promptly of all changes and trends in the markets. With an unusually large crop of good quality fruit the growers are faced with lower prices than they anticipated and the department of agriculture is endeavoring to assist them to get the most possible for their crop by taking advantage of fluctuations in the prices. The chief means of getting the information to the apple growers is through the regular reports on prices and conditions in the market which are mailed out regularly. These reports have been going out once each week but as the fall crop of apples begins to roll into the markets in large quantities it was thought best to double the service and send out bulletins on prices and conditions each week.

For some years the department has given this service to the fruit growers and its value is indicated in the steadily increasing number who request the apple bulletins on prices and conditions. This year about 600 will receive the bulletins twice each week through the main marketing season and once a week through the latter part of the winter. The bulletins tell of actual prices received in Boston and in other markets as reported by the market specialists of the department. They tell of trends in prices and assist growers in determining whether to ship or to hold their apples, or to send them to some market other than Boston.

There is at the present time no real glut of apples in the market though the supply is ample for the needs under the lessened demand due to poor business conditions. It is a year when only the fancy and first quality fruit will bring good prices. The bulletins are serving a very useful purpose in this respect in that they induce many a grower to leave the poorer apples at home to be made into cider rather than forcing them on to a market where they are not needed and where they cannot bring any reasonable prices. Moreover their presence in the market tends to bring down the prices of the better quality fruit.

While the bulletin service was developed for the apple growers of the state it has taken on a New England wide significance and growers from every state in New England and some from other states have asked for it and have been put on the mailing list. They are all interested keenly in prices in Boston as it is their principal market.

AGRICULTURAL FAIRS

In 1930 season of of agricultural fairs has opened with no indication of any hard times to affect the attendance and interest, according to A. W. Lombard, secretary of the Massachusetts Agricultural fairs association, who attended several of the early fairs and from now on will be in daily attendance at some fair. Records of the early fairs show that there was an increase of about 30 percent in the number of exhibits as compared with last year and that in spite of a rainy Labor day the average attendance this year is fully up to last year.

The showing of fruit in the early fairs is the best that has been exhibited in many years. The season has been ideal for ripening the fruit well and in the early fairs much more mature fruit and much better colored apples are being shown than is usual at this season. Cattle also are being exhibited in greater numbers than in recent years. At Middlefield, one of the hill town fairs, the number of cattle exhibited increased from 198 in 1929 to 229 in 1930. The entries received for live stock for Brockton are enough to fill the barns to overflowing and at the Eastern States Exposition the early entries came in so much in excess of previous years that the management has been refusing any additional entries for more than a week.

The list of early fairs includes some of the smaller ones but from now on there will be come major fair in the State going almost every day until early October. Mr. Lombard feels that the records of the early fairs indicate that there will be no falling off in attendance at the larger fairs which are now beginning. One of the most striking indications of interest is in the horse shows. Every year more and more of the fairs have some form of a horse show as an attraction. This year Weymouth added a horse show to its other many interests and as a result drew the largest attendance it ever has had. Dog shows are also proving a big attraction to the fairs which have put them on.

The evidences of continued and increased interest and attendance at the fairs is very encouraging to the leaders in the association. Mr. Parsons, the President, and the other officers were afraid that the slackening of business this year would result in a falling off in attendance. They are all pleasantly surprised however, at the showing made by the early fairs.
